

NORTHERN SACRAMENTO GROUNDWATER NEWSLETTER SERIES

Published by the University of California Cooperative Extension, Tehama County
Copies available on-line at http://cetehama.ucdavis.edu/Agriculture/Groundwater_Management.htm

Funded by the Renewable Resources Extension Act

Published from April 2003 through July 2004

Six articles in this series

- Seeking an understanding of the groundwater aquifer systems in the northern Sacramento Valley. April 2003.
- Incentives for groundwater management in the Sacramento Valley in the northern Sacramento Valley. July 2003.
- Possible approaches to groundwater management in the Northern Sacramento Valley. Oct. 2003.
- Groundwater level monitoring. What is it? How is it done? Why do it? January, 2004
- Water well design, construction, and development: Important considerations before making the investment. April 2004.
- Pumps and pumping plant efficiency: Basics worth remembering. July 2004.

Funded by the "Four County Drinking Water Quality Program"

Glenn, Butte, Tehama, and Shasta Counties

Published beginning in September 2005 and continuing through June 2007

Five articles in this series

- Seeking an understanding of the groundwater aquifer systems in the northern Sacramento Valley: An Update. September 2005.
- Conjunctive Water Management: What is it? Why consider it? What are the challenges? February 2006.
- Land subsidence: What is it? Why is it and important aspect of groundwater management? June 2006.
- Monitoring groundwater quality: An important aspect of groundwater management. September 2006.
- Working to understand groundwater quality in the Northern Sacramento Valley. June, 2007.

Funded by the Tehama County Flood Control and Water Conservation District and the Glenn County Water Advisory Committee

Published in October 2011

On article

- Acquiring a better understanding of the groundwater well infrastructure on the valley floor of Tehama County and neighboring counties, October, 2011.