

Sites Reservoir: Good for California

TIME TO ACT

Building Sites Reservoir is critical to a more reliable water supply.

Even in this drought, if Sites Reservoir was in place, it could have stored more than 400,000 acre-feet of water from storms last winter.

That's enough water to:

Dramatically help salmon runs

Provide habitat for wintering waterfowl

Supply additional water for urban use

Grow more than 100,000 acres of crops

Source: California Department of Water Resources

For more details visit SacramentoValley.org